WNAZ joins ABC Radio

Trevecca's radio station, WNAZ-FM, has improved its news program and is now an affiliate of ABC Radio. This gives 89-FM access to several nationally produced news programs including the Information Radio News at the top of the hour and "This Week with David Brinkley" on Sundays.

According to Station Manager David Deese, this addition will not only enhance WNAZ's news department but it will also help in the training of students for on-air news broadcasting.

Included in the package is "John Coleman Weather," "Lou Boda Sports," and "Gordon Williams Business Reports." There is also "Roger Caras: The Living World," "Christian In Action" and several other commentaries.

Veteran news reporter Joe Templeton will be anchoring the daily Information Network news broadcasts and ABC News Correspondent Kate Doordan will anchor the evening and weekend programs.

Lou Boda and Fred Manfra will be hosting the network's "World of Sports" programs. Boda will anchor the weekday broadcasts which will air four times a day, and Manfra will host the weekend version which will air nine times.

The network news is available to WNAZ free of charge as long as the other ABC affiliated commercial stations in this market don't object. It is offered free because the station is non-commercial, so WNAZ only has to pay the phone bill.

Deese also reports that the station has acquired some new equipment specifically two new control boards. One board will go in the control room, replacing the old mixing board that the station has been using for the past few years.

The other board, a smaller version of the first, will go in the news room for news broadcasts.

According to Deese, these boards will provide several advantages over the old mixing board. Primarily, they will be better electronically than the old ones.

This year's staff includes Mark Michael as both Program Director and Sports Director — the post that he held last year — and Marsha Brockman as News Director, also for the second year.

Newly remodeled Guest House

'Super Sunday' set for Student Life Center

Where the old McKay Hall now stands, a STUDENT LIFE CENTER will soon stand. By late summer or the fall of 1983 it is expected that the construction of the new Student Life Center will begin, if plans work out and enough money is raised. The old McKay Hall will be torn down in the spring of 1983. If plans go as expected the Center should be finished by the fall of 1984.

A Student Life Center will provide adequate dining facilities and it will be a center for both commuting and residential students of the school. At the present time there is not a facility that can accommodate the more than 900 students enrolled. The present cafeteria can only handle 200 students at a time. The Center will provide a place for fellowship, social growth, and other student activities which are a very important part of college life.

The Center will be 35,000 square feet on three floors. It will include dining facilities — one large and two small dining rooms — vending machine area, bookstore, post office, student's locker area, conference rooms and counseling area, student year book and newspaper offices, student government offices, student lounge, parlors, covered patio and plaza areas. The areas that are now used for these purposes are needed for classrooms, workshop areas, faculty training areas and limited recreational use.

The construction work will not cause any inconvenience to activities on campus but will have some effect on the flow of traffic in the area. It will not cause a shortage of classrooms, or dorm rooms during construction since the old building was only used for storage. The only inconvenience to any extent will be in respects to keeping people out of dangerous areas and the noise from the construction work.

It is estimated that the Center will cost $2.2 million dollars. $675,000 will come from the church constituency, $250,000 from Alumni and friends, $400,000 from national corporations and foundations, and $875,000 from Nashville and regional businesses. At the present time $375,000 has been raised through pledges and cash.

Claude Diehl, Director of Corporate Support, is in charge of raising most of the money for the Center. Mr. Diehl works with money sources outside the church and school, such as businesses and foundations.

Pleais Hampton, Director of Development/Church Relations, is in charge of raising money through church and school related sources. "Super Sunday for Trevecca" is September 19, 1982, which will begin a two year campaign to raise money. Churches are asked to pledge 50% or half of this year's church school budget. Each church will have two years to pay off its pledge.

"The Student Life Center will centralize student activities. It will enhance the

Some grads getting fewer offers

(CPS) — The job market for this year's college grads isn't good, and it may even be getting worse.

That's the prognosis offered by placement and employment experts around the country, who add that even the so-called "hot majors" — engineering and computer science students — are getting significantly fewer job offers than their counterparts a year ago.

"The job market is definitely softening for college grads," observes Jack Shingleton, the placement director at Michigan State University who administers a yearly survey of business college recruiting plans.

"Disciplines such as social science, arts and letters, and education are experiencing the greatest underemployment. Even the engineering and computer science majors are not as well off as they were two or three years ago," he says.

The College Placement Council, a trade association of campus placement offices, reports job offers to June grads declined for the first time in six years in 1982.

The U.S. Department of Labor says high school and college student unemployment has hit 14.4 percent, up from 13.7 percent a year ago.

"The job opportunities are just not there," says William Heartwell Jr., executive vice-president of the Interstate Conference of Employment Securities Agencies. "Companies have had to cut back drastically. For the first time we are seeing college graduates working in jobs that are trainee positions."

Employers and placement experts blame the recession. Hundreds of top corporations have instituted hiring freezes, cut back on the number of college grads they employ, and cancelled their college

Lab helps to strengthen weak areas

Betty was a great history student, but she had problems with writing. Therefore, she did badly on term papers and essay exams, which caused her to make only average grades in history.

Richard was sharp in business, but was never very good in mathematics. Thus, he was failing accounting.

These situations are fictitious, but similar ones occur every year. Students may be great in most subjects, but one weak area causes the grades to come down. The difference between a great grade in a class and just an average one can depend on the improvement of certain basic skills.

It was for this purpose that Trevecca's Learning Lab was set up in the Spring of 1980. Although students in the Basic Skills program are required to take advantage of the lab, it is open and available to all students, according to lab director, Mrs. Norma White.

Mrs. White describes the lab as "a supportive service for the Basic Skills Courses," as well as a service "for the college community." She also stresses that the services are available "at no charge."

The Learning Lab offers help in writing, math and reading. Student assistants are available to help their peers in these areas, and there are also packets for individual work.

According to Mrs. White, the primary function of the lab is to help students who are weak in one of these areas to acquire better writing, math or reading skills. This is done at the student's own pace in what is known as a "self-paced" program.

During the 1980-81 year, the lab's first year of operation, an average of fifty students per quarter took advantage of the Learning Lab, said Mrs. White. This amounted to about 172 average hours per quarter.

Last year the average rose to 71 students per quarter and 412 hours. The number of student assistants was also increased last year to four from the one assistant during the first year of operation.

Mrs. White also reports that some physical changes are also taking place in the lab. Plans are being made to begin using a vacant room next door to the lab as the audio-visual section, and, if the need arises, the Curriculum Library will be used as overflow space. There are also brand new cushioned chairs.

The Learning Lab is located in the basement of the campus library, across from the Curriculum Library. Students wishing to take advantage of their services may go in anytime during the day or on Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Students may also call Mrs. White at extension 1362 or 1376 to set up an appointment. Mrs. White's office is located in Tidwell 110.

Mrs. White will also be directing a Study Skills Workshop on September 18, from 9-12 in BS101. The workshop will cover such areas as time management and motivation. This is also offered at no charge to the student.

NASHVILLE: A city with many names and opportunities

In ancient times the name of a person or place told you a lot about their character. In the same manner, those who want to know what kind of city Nashville is need only look at all the names that have been given to this city.

The official name of Nashville was given to the city in 1784. Five years earlier a band of pioneers had landed on the banks of the Cumberland River and built a fort called Fort Nashborough after a Revolutionary War hero.

Today, a replica of that fort stands in the same site just a few blocks from the heart of downtown.

In 1796, Tennessee became the 16th state in the union. Nashville was officially designated the capital of the state in 1843.

Nashville has also been called the "Wall Street of the South." This name comes from the fact that Nashville is home to many banking and insurance operations.

Aside from the city's banking and insurance interests, she is also the home for several large corporations. GENESCO, the world's largest clothing manufacturer; Hospital Corporation of America, the world's largest commercial hospital corporation and Thomas Nelson Publishers, the world's largest Bible publisher all count Nashville as home.

Another designation for Tennessee's capital city has been the "Athens of the South." This name does not necessarily come from the city's use of Greek architecture or even the actual replica of the Parthenon. Instead it is derived from the fact that Nashville is home to 16 institutions of higher learning including Trevecca. She is also home to many other cultural organizations.

The Cumberland Museum and Science Center is located just a few minutes from TNC. It offers many exhibits depicting the area's rich geographical heritage and it also has the largest planetarium in the midstate.

There is also the Tennessee State Museum which features a 3,000 year old Egyptian mummy, and the new Tennessee Performing Arts Center which is home to the Nashville Symphony as well as numerous musicals and stage shows.

Then there is the Upper Room in which you can find a life-sized wood carving of the Last Supper. The chapel containing the carving also has a beautiful stained-glass window depicting the history of Christianity.

Finally, Nashville is best known as "Music City, U.S.A." Her large recording community combined with her rich musical heritage give this city rights to that title. She is also the home of many country music stars as well as numerous Christian music groups.

MTA provides services

The Metropolitan Transit Authority (MTA) is a means of transportation by bus. The regular adult fare is 65 cents. Trevecca is at a very convenient location on the Murfreesboro Road route.

The MTA can take someone just about anywhere in Nashville. There are different routes for different areas of the city. They are all designated by different numbers.

When someone needs to switch routes it costs an additional ten cents. Transfers take place at the first connecting point between two routes.

The MTA provides special services for the downtown area. There is no charge to ride the bus during the rush hours within the downtown area. The downtown boundry is Charlotte Avenue, Broadway, the Cumberland River, and Ninth Avenue. To simply ask the driver for a RUSH CARD and return it when you leave the bus is all that is required to receive this service.

Some bus routes also provide PARK and RIDE services. Park for free!

The MTA provides special fares. Children under five can ride free. It costs 30 cents for children five to twelve to ride. Students, grades seventh through twelfth can ride for 30 cents with an EASY RIDER CARD.

Elderly and handicapped people can ride for 30 cents during non-peak hours with a MTA GOLDEN AGE or SPECIAL SERVICE CARD.

The bus system was originally privately owned and was called the Nashville Transportation Company. In 1973 Metro took over the operation, making it a public system. It is governed by the Metropolitan Transit Authority.

"Trevecca is in a very good location for receiving service from the MTA bus system," said Mr. Bob Brooks of MTA Marketing. Trevecca is located on the 15 Murfreesboro Road route. On this route are Metro Industrial Park, Metro Airport, Trevecca College, and Draughtons Junior College.

The other stops are marked by the blue and white MTA signs.

MTA reduces daily traffic congestion by keeping 15,000 additional autos off Nashville streets. It reduces by at least 3,500, the number of parking spaces that are needed in the downtown area.

Over 90% of the 70,000 people who used MTA charter service last year were transported to destinations within Nashville where opportunities to purchase retail goods and services existed.

MTA riders reduce community gasoline consumption by over 1 million gallons annually.

MTA riders contribute to safety in the community by reducing vehicle miles traveled, thus reducing by over 200, the number of vehicle accidents which occur in Nashville each year.

MTA facilitates educational opportunities of Nashvillians by providing services to elementary and secondary schools as well as to 16 colleges and universities.

The Metropolitan Transit Authority is helpful through these ways to Trevecca students and many others throughout the city.

If you need to cover that dorm or Apt. floor, we are the people to see!

Cornett is new Bookstore Manager

Nash joins TNC administration

Dr. Edmond P. Nash has joined the administration of Trevecca College as Executive Assistant to the President for Church Relations and Development.

Dr. Nash was formerly pastor of the College Hill Church of the Nazarene here on campus. He served there from March of 1974 until August of this year.

According to Dr. Nash, his responsibilities will be to report to the president on behalf of Admissions, Development, Church Relations and Alumni. He will also be actively involved in helping to raise money for the proposed Student Life Center.

Dr. Nash received his A.B. in Religion from Olivet Nazarene College in 1966 and his Master of Divinity degree from Nazarene Theological Seminary three years later. He earned his Doctorate of Divinity from Vanderbilt University in 1978.

Previous to serving at College Hill, Dr. Nash pastored at two churches. He began his ministry in June of 1969 in Kingston, Missouri and later pastored in Westminster, Colorado.

According to Dr. Nash there are several goals related to his new position. These include helping to "raise the level of appreciation and confidence" in Trevecca and to help raise the needed funds for the SLC.

Dr. Nash has two children (Erin, 12 and Edie, 10) and his wife, Judy, serves as treasurer of the Nashville Christian Women's Club and secretary of the district N.W.M.S. Council.

Two others have also joined the Trevecca "family" this year. They are Art Cornett and Brenda Miller.

Mr. Cornett will be teaching Russian History; and Introduction to Russian Language and Culture. He is also the new manager of the Bookstore.

He is originally from Hazard, Kentucky. With 26 years of service, he retired in 1977 from the Navy with the rank of Lieutenant Commander. His wife, Eilene, is secretary for Trevecca's Chief Fiscal Officer. They have three daughters and four grandchildren and attend Trinity Church of the Nazarene.

Mr. Cornett got interested in Russian History through traveling in the Navy and "seeing" the history of many different cultures. In teaching Trevecca students about Russia he hopes to create a better understanding of a people and government different from ours yet, somewhat like ours.

His Navy experience will help him with the operation of managing the Bookstore. "I will try to provide better service for the school by having a more streamlined inventory tailored to meet the needs of our students and make every effort to be competitive with other stores," said Mr. Cornett.

Brenda Miller

Miss Brenda Miller is a part-time Instructor in the Music Department. She is originally from Huntsville, Alabama but she and her family now live in Nashville.

Miss Miller graduated from Trevecca in 1979. During her school years she was very active in all aspects of school life. She was a member of the Concert Choir, Concert Band, and "Direction". She was also an accompanist for different music department groups.

In 1978 she was Valentine Queen and in the 1978-79 school year she was the first to be given the Musician of the Year award by the music department.

Miss Miller received her master's degree in Music from Austin Peay State University. While at Austin Peay she was a graduate assistant and a member of the Madrigal Chamber Singers who appeared on television.

She was elected as Miss Austin Peay in 1981 and was a semi-finalist in the Miss Tennessee Beauty Pageant of that same year.

In Miss Miller's spare time she is a Mary Kay Beauty Consultant and enjoys this work very much. During this past summer she served at First Church of the Nazarene as pianist. Besides playing the piano and singing with groups at church she also enjoys playing the French Horn as part of a brass trio with her brothers.

"I got interested in music through piano lessons as a child, being in the band during high school, and especially through church music activities. I've just always liked music," when asked how she got interested and started in music as a career.

"Coming back as a teacher to a school I attended feels different because I see a different side of the professors and find that they are really human after all. I am very happy to be teaching at Trevecca. The teachers have been very supportive in helping me get started in my teaching career," stated Miss Miller when asked what teaching is like at Trevecca.

Student leaders make plans for coming year

At least eight of the ten top Student Government Association officers were in Nashville for most of the Summer preparing for the new year.

Darrell Wright, ASB president, reports that he has been working on several projects including the formation of a student Academic Affairs Committee.

According to Wright, there is an SGA committee working in just about every area of campus life except academic affairs. Therefore, he wants to set up a committee that will provide student input into this area.

At the present there are two students on the Academic Council, which comes under the Academic Dean. There are also a few other departmental committees such as P.A. Advisory, Teacher Education and others on which at least two students serve.

Wright states that he would like to take one student from each of these committees and form the Academic Affairs Committee. These students would compile comments, suggestions and ideas in the area of academic affairs so that the two students on the Academic Council will have some input from the students they serve.

According to Wright, the final draft for this committee is being prepared right now and it will be presented to SGA for input later.

Wright also reports that some work is being done in the area of married students. He says that at this point student government is looking into their responsibilities to this group of students and that some ideas are being formed.

Lloyd Brock, vice president of spiritual life, also reports that his department is doing some work in this area.

Brock went on to report that "Power Cells" will be formed this quarter. He stated that job descriptions have been drawn up for floor chaplains and that they will be leading these groups. The primary purpose for these groups is to build spiritual discipline through prayer, sharing, devotion and service. "This is not a Bible study," Brock reported.

Brock also said that JOY will be continued this year and that a chapel service has been scheduled on September 22 to give details.

Number of frosh down; returnees, transfers up

Despite cuts in financial aid it looks as though Trevecca's Fall enrollment may hold even with last year's record-setting number, according to administration officials.

Sources in the Admissions office report that enrollment should be about the same as last year, but that freshman applications are down. However, there are fewer cancellations and many more transfers helping to hold the overall enrollment steady.

Mr. Wayne Gallup, assistant dean of Student Services, says that there is also an overflow situation with the rooms, but that it, too, is about the same as last year.

According to Gallup, the newly remodeled Guest House and 511 Lester will be used to house girls and guys, respectively. There will also be three guys in the number 3 room in most suites in Benson Hall.

The three per room arrangement replaces the arrangement used last Fall when several guys were placed in suite lobbies. Because of the privacy problem, Gallup thought that the present arrangement would be better.

However, despite the overflow situation, Gallup said that it would probably clear itself up within a few weeks. This is due to students dropping out during the first few weeks of classes. But, Gallup did state that he hopes this does not happen, because higher enrollment would be better for Trevecca overall.

Since the enrollment is being held steady by returning students, rather than new freshmen, many people are applauding the work of Steve Harris, director of Retention. Harris' job is to bring the students back and that is the situation this year.

As of the first week of August there were 373 applications sent in with fees, as compared to 377 for that time last year. Of these there are 250 Freshmen applicants compared to 298 in 1981-82.

Although those figures are lower than last year's there were 13 more transfer applications than August of 1981. Out of the 250 Freshman applicants there were 153 females and 99 males.

As was stated, these figures are based on applications received as of the first week of August. There have been reports of numerous more Freshmen applying, but there have also been some cancellations. Therefore, the complete total will not be known until registration is complete.

Editor's Point

with Tom Felder
Editor-in-Chief

A good way to describe our job at Trev-Echoes is "rebuilding a tradition." Traditions are important at Trevecca and the staff of your student newspaper is dedicated to keeping ours alive.

The past two years have been spent building a foundation and improving the structure of this newspaper. When Anita Thompson (1980-81 editor) took over, she had a large job ahead. The paper had lost most of its credibility and respect and there were very few staff members to help her make improvements. However, she worked overtime and left me with a solid foundation on which to build.

Last year, as I began my first year as editor, the staff and I began building on that foundation. With design changes, good and aggressive reporting and dedication by the staff I believe we achieved our goal of becoming a credible and respected newspaper.

Now we are on the threshold of a new and exciting year. We aren't satisfied enough with what we did last year to stay where we are. Instead, we are excited about the potential we have this year to make our student newspaper a viable voice on Trevecca's campus and a primary source of news and events.

This year you will see several new changes including more in-depth reporting, more state and national news coverage and a much improved sports page.

We are also adding an Op-Ed page. This page will serve as a forum of ideas and comments from all members of the Trevecca community. Everyone who respects what others think will want to make this must reading. We will include letters to the editor, a debate-style column called "Point-to-Point", a humor/satirical column called "Little Wit" and other issue-oriented columns.

For those of you who like other kinds of activity we are also starting an Entertainment page. This page will be anchored by our returning CPS Crossword Puzzle and our new "Drabble" comic strip. The rest of the page will be filled with informative, exciting and different entertainment features.

These are just a few of the things that we are going to be doing this year. Our primary goal is to give you a newspaper that informs and provides you a place to discuss ideas. We are not here to put out a student PR paper. Instead, we want to produce a credible and professional newspaper that everyone in the Trevecca community can be proud of and will enjoy reading.

We are very interested in what you think. If you have any ideas, questions, comments or even complaints, please let me know. We want to hear from students and faculty and administrators.

If you write us you may use the slot in the Trev-Echoes door or drop a note in Box 1646. I'm looking forward to hearing from you and to serving you this year. (T.G.F.)

Cable TV Seminar this weekend

If you've ever wanted to star in or produce your own television show, then Tennessee State University is offering something that just might interest you.

This weekend TSU is hosting a workshop on Cable TV entitled "Making Television Work For You: Community TV in Nashville."

The workshop includes sessions on such topics as "Planning Successful TV Programs," "Community TV for Artists," and "Community TV for Educators."

According to workshop officials, this workshop is for everyone, including "educators, musicians, librarians, artists, and community volunteers." It is for anyone who "wants to share something that can make Nashville a better place."

"Making Television Work For You" is free but you must register in advance. Persons wishing more information should call 269-5075. This workshop is sponsored by Public Access Nashville.

EDITORIAL POLICY

The opinions expressed in editorials and letters are not necessarily those of the students, faculty or administration of Trevecca Nazarene College, or the Trev-Echoes staff, but are those of the author.

Letters are welcomed, but they must be typed and should not exceed 300 words. Unsigned letters will not be accepted, but names may be withheld upon request.

Trev-Echoes reserves the right to edit without impairing the meaning.

ASBeat

with Darrell Wright
ASB President

Well, another school year is upon us. To some this will mean a new and major adjustment. To others it will be a final chance to make their college days what they had hoped them to be.

I've got a lot of great expectations for this coming year and I know that if we all pray earnestly and work fervently it will indeed be our best and most memorable year at TNC.

In preparing for this year this summer has been a busy one for the administration and student leaders alike. While the school year seems to be packed with problem solving and task accomplishment, the past three months have been more of a creative period. Let me share with you some areas of particular interest.

Nearing completion of the drafting stages is a resolution to go before SGA concerning the lack of student input in the area of academics. And, so a proposal is being drafted to incorporate a standing sub-committee on Academic Affairs, which will work directly with the Academic Council and the Academic Dean.

Another area that has been needing attention is the involvement of SGA married students in student government and SGA's responsibility to them. There are special needs in this area that most students don't see and I hope to see a lot of attention focused on these needs this year.

Finally (for now), is the student interest in seeing the completion of the new Student Life Center. I trust that all of you are as excited as I am about the administration's efforts in meeting student needs. I also hope that you are as excited as I am about giving them our support in seeing this through.

Various considerations are now being made concerning a student fund raiser to show our total support in this monumental task.

You will be hearing more on these and other items of student interest in the near future. If you have any suggestions or comments, on these or any other concerns, please let me know. Remember, if we work together we can make this the year of accomplishments. (D.W.)

Clinic now offers most services 'free'

Trevecchia's clinic interests is offering a variety of medical services every year that benefits students and faculty and helps insure the health and safety of the campus. These services are being continued, with an added benefit this year.

An important change in clinical services will be the installation of a prepaid medical plan. Approximately $10.00 of the general fee paid at registration will be used to cover a number of medical expenses that may be incurred by students.

This, along with student insurance, that is also covered in the general fee, should be a benefit to both individual and general campus health because students will no longer have to avoid needed visits to the clinic because they are afraid they will not be able to pay their bills.

Under this plan, all visits made by full time students to the nurse or physician's assistant for acute illnesses will be free. If needed the P.A. (a professional who works under the supervision of a doctor) will refer the student to a physician, whose fees will vary according to the illness.

These visits will sometimes be covered under school insurance. Many lab tests, such as throat cultures, are also covered under insurance.

The prepaid fees will be adjusted for part-time students and married students with children will also be eligible for reduced rates.

Savings can also be made on the purchase of medications. Under the prepaid plan, some medications prescribed at the clinic will be distributed free of charge. Other medications are sold at the wholesale price, which is often even less than usual because of the use of generic brands.

The clinic is located in the basement of Georgia Dorm and is open from 8:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.

The staff includes a full time medical assistant, staff nurse, two physician's assistants and a part-time doctor.

The clinic treats a variety of illnesses and often sees cases such as upper respiratory infections (colds, strep throat, bronchitis), flu, and sports injuries. Routine physicals and premarital exams are also done.

For emergencies after clinic hours, a staff member is regularly on call for referral to appropriate medical help. At these times, students should first contact their Resident Counselor or a security guard, who will reach the person on call.

Fewer job offers recruitment programs.

"We're not hiring at all, and we don't plan to in the near future," says a spokeswoman for Sperry-Univac's Mini-Computer Division, which several years ago was aggressively recruiting college grads.

Likewise, Xerox cut the number of college graduates it hired by 20 percent, and company officials expect the situation to get worse before it gets better.

And Exxon, traditionally a major recruiter of engineers and other high-technology majors, is currently recruiting only at selected schools.

"Our recruiting efforts have been curtailed dramatically," says an Exxon representative. "With the economy the way it is, things are very slow."

"Employers are being a bit more cautious this year because of the economy," summarizes Linda Pengilly, of the College Placement Council.

"Where students might have received six or seven job offers last year, they're getting only two or three this year. There's a significant drop in the overall number of job offers being made, particularly in the high technology fields."

"It's definitely a tighter market than last year," agrees Rene Filice, placement director for the College of Liberal Arts at Stanford. "We're hearing about a lot of companies having hiring freezes. A lot of people are going through the interview process and everything, only to find out that the company has instituted a freeze."

At the University of Missouri-Columbia, "on-campus recruiting looks real tight," according to Thom Rakes, coordinator for career planning and placement.

But even in light of the recruiting cutbacks and the lowest level of job offers in six years, many experts note that things could be much worse, and some even predict a turnaround in the job market by the end of the year.

"In spite of the fact that there were fewer job offers," points out the Placement Council's Pengilly, "salaries have not really seemed to suffer."

Engineering grads, for example, have enjoyed eight-to-14 percent salary hikes. Computer science majors are drawing six percent higher salaries. Business grads can expect eight-to-nine percent increases over last year.

The high-tech disciplines, followed by business majors, remain the degrees of choice when it comes to job openings and starting salaries. Even with a nine percent drop in the number of engineering openings, the Engineering Manpower Commission reports that the unemployment rate among engineers is a meager two percent.

"And even if they're not as hot as they used to be," adds Pengilly, "I think the high-tech disciplines will remain in high demand, at least for a while."

"Information systems management will be a hot item in the next few years, as will software management, programming and electrical and mechanical engineering," predicts Elva Bradley placement director at Auburn University.

"MBAs with technical training will also be highly marketable," she adds.

"This country is switching from an industrial and manufacturing economy to more of a high-tech and service-oriented economy," observes Andrew Sherwood, president of Goodrich and Sherwood, a New York employment agency. "I think the (job) market is coming back, but in a different way," he explains. "The hot majors of the future will be in areas such as human resources management, productivity improvement and time management — basically any area that has to do with creating a better, more effective long-term environment."

But that apparently excludes liberal arts majors.

"While salaries for engineers at least managed to keep up with the consumer price index," Michigan State's Shingleton says, "liberal arts disciplines have been creeping up at three-to-five percent (a year). In fact, what's happening with many of these disciplines is that they actually have less earning power now than they did ten years ago."

"The economic value of the college degree," he mourns, "is gradually eroding."

Trevecca offers all kinds of clubs

There are numerous clubs and organizations at Trevecca in which students can get involved. Because of space limitations, we cannot list all of them and their activities. However, we will provide a list of the major ones and a brief description.

TREV-ECHOES — Student newspaper; positions open in writing, typing and ad sales.

DARDA — student yearbook; positions in layout, and ad sales.

WNAZ — radio station; positions open as announcers, disk jockeys, news and sports reporters.

FORENSICS — participates in several tournaments each year. They achieved recognition as one of the best teams on the circuit.

SIGMA — Ladies service club; 1981-82 Club of the Year.

CIVINETTES — Ladies service club.

CIRCLE K CLUB — Trevecca's only men's service club.

TREVECCA MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION — open to all Religion majors. They are responsible for coordinating the Ministry Outreach Teams.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS IN ACTION — open to all students interested in Christian service. They coordinate the Community Care Corps.

JANUSIANS — Drama club; they meet regularly and produce a comedy each Winter Quarter.

VETERANS CLUB — open to veterans and the dependents of veterans.

DEPARTMENT CLUBS — There are several department clubs including the Business Club, Student Tennessee Education Association, Music Club and others.

If students feel that there is a need for another type of club or organization they should contact ASB Executive Vice President Rocky Jenkins.

dining facilities by making them more pleasant. It will give all of the students a chance to enjoy a sit-down meal at one time. It will centralize the student government offices. It will be very important to the day students, because the Center will give them a place to 'hang their hats' while at school. I see it also as a sense of pride. We as a college do not have a student center whereas most other colleges do. We need a Center accessible to the students, one they can be proud of," said Claude Diehl.

Baseball field gets new Press Box

Thanks to some help from last year's Junior Class and donated labor, Trevecca's baseball field now sports a new press box and an improved Trojan dugout.

The Class of 1983 donated several hundred dollars last Spring, which was added to some funds from the baseball team. This, along with free labor from David Deese and others, made it possible to move forward with the long awaited project.

The press box was built on top of the home dugout. It includes space for a WNAZ broadcasting booth, another broadcasting booth for visiting radio stations (which will also serve as a booth for scouts), a booth for the announcer and scorekeeper and a storage area for the baseball team.

The dugout itself has been raised to ground level. This gives it a new concrete floor as well as making it safer. Also, because of the press box above it, the dugout has a new roof.

According to David Deese, station manager for WNAZ, the station will especially benefit from this because it gives their broadcasters a cleaner, dryer and more comfortable place to set up and it also keeps their equipment better protected.

Deese stated that before the broadcasters would have to "break down" the equipment, if it even "looked like it would rain." Now, he says, they can keep broadcasting until the game is over.

Also, where as it usually took approximately 45 minutes to set up the equipment before the game, all they need to do now is check the volume levels, according to Deese.

Other improvements to the sports area this summer included the refinishing of the gym floor and new surfaces for the tennis courts.

Tulowitzky Talks

with Greg Tulowitzky

Welcome back old-timers and hello newcomers. I hope your summer was great! As Trevecca's athletic program gets cranked up for another season, I hope you will support the fighting Trojans as they conquer their opponents.

Over the years, the athletic program has built a tradition of excellence and this year will not be any different. The veterans are here to carry on and the rookies are here to learn and to inherit the tradition.

What is the responsibility of we the fans? Well, we are here to cheer, shout encouragement and to build the ego of the athlete. (Take anyway you want.)

In the weeks to come I will give you the best coverage I can. My goal is for you, the reader, to turn to the sports page and find the most entertaining, complete coverage possible.

If I do not achieve this goal I not only let myself down, but I also let all of you down.

Let me hear your comments and complaints. If you don't like what I have said, I don't care . . . this is my column! Good day. (G.T.)

Football, Volleyball to begin next week

The Trevecca Intramural Association officially swings into action a week from Saturday as both volleyball and football seasons begin.

The intramural volleyball games have been moved to Saturday mornings this year due to work and gym schedules, according to TIA Vice President, Celeste Thompson.

Men's teams will take the court at 9:00 a.m., Coeds at 10:00 a.m., and the ladies will begin at 11:00 a.m.

TIA Football begins later that afternoon as Alpha takes on Beta at 1:00 p.m. and Gamma goes up against defending champion Delta at 2:30 p.m.

Thompson reports that there will be an organizational meeting for all guys interested in playing football this Saturday, September 11, at 9:00 a.m. At that time days will be selected for the practices. According to Thompson, there will be two mandatory practices a week, with a makeup day on Fridays.

Free physicals will be given in the clinic on September 6-9. After that the regular fee will be charged. All players are also to pay the $10.00 deposit for equipment.

TIA football begins next week
