This year's council in deep discussion at one of its' weekly meetings.

Ridgerunners bring "bluegrass" to TNC

by Cindy Conine

The winter quarter of 1973-1974 saw many new things happen at Trevecca. Among them was the formation of a group known as the Ridgerunners. Four musicians, Greg (Ernest) Smith, Danny (Rock) Whetstone, Bill (Toot) Smith, and Joe Perry combined their efforts and talent to become the original Ridgerunners. Greg describes their music as "foot stompin' bluegrass" and says its for "just pickin' around the stove". The group also is into bluegrass gospel music and has even written a few songs themselves.

The Ridgerunners have performed at Solomon's Porch, several of TNC's varsity shows, the Tennessee Reception and Guidance Center for Children, WNAZ radio station, the cafeteria on Tro-Jollies Day, Trevecca's Student Center, and Whispering Hills Nazarene Church. Their next performance is scheduled for April 13 at First Church of the Nazarene in the evening service.

One thing that makes the Ridgerunners kind of different is their interesting personalities. It is apparent immediately to one meeting them that they are happy and satisfied people, not only with their music, but also with their lives. In addition, they possess a style of humor all their own.

In the year that has gone by since the group got together, there has been a few changes. Joe Perry is no longer with the group, and the group has added Loyd (Buz) Harrison. Two other musicians have recently performed with the group and may possibly become permanent members. They are Alan (Lil' Everett) Holmes and Pickin' Paul Brannon.

The Ridgerunners come from varied and interesting backgrounds. Bill or 'Toot' is from Virginia Beach, Va., and a member of Maranatha. He plays the "six string guitar" and states he plans to become a brain surgeon. Buz Harrison also comes from Virginia Beach. He plays the "four string bass", will tour with the Encounters this summer, and is majoring in sociology. Rock Whetstone is from a little farther down South, Dublin, Georgia to be exact. Rock is a mathematics major and plays the "eight string mandolin". Greg Smith, who has been pickin' a guitar for about nine years, is from Thomaston, Georgia, and plays the "five string banjo" for the group.

Their music is enjoyed by many at Trevecca and in the surrounding community. Bill states "I feel our music is relevant to today's society," and this is probably one of the reasons for their popularity. In relating to society today, the group came out with a song not long ago called "On the Cover of the Trev-Echoes," which was arranged by Greg and Danny from the recently popular version of "On the Cover of the Rolling Stone." Here's the first verse of the song.

Well we're bluegrass singers
We got toes and fingers
And we're loved everywhere we go.

And we do our grinnin'
For less than 50 cents a show.
We have all kinds of fun
Singin' "Fox on the Run"
But the thrill we never knowed
Is the thrill that'll getcha
On the "Cover of the Trev-echoes."

The Ridgerunners have at last made "the cover of the Trev-Echoes," as sung in the Tro-Jollies Variety Show last quarter.

Martin, Moore head spring revival

By Barry Kolp

Our speaker for this year's Spring Revival is Paul Martin. Rev. Martin is well-known in the Church of the Nazarene. Ray Moore, the song evangelist, is providing the special music.

Due to the overlap with STUCO elections, only Tuesday and Friday chapels are set aside for the revival. Each evening this week, however, services are being held at 7:30 p.m. at College Hill Church of the Nazarene.

Trevecca has three planned revivals per year. The Fall Revival is sponsored by Trevecca and supported by College Hill Church. The Winter Revival is student-directed. College Hill Church sponsors the Spring Revival, with Trevecca support.

This revival promises to be a time of spiritual renewal for both church and college.

Blankenship to attend symposium

by Cindy Conine

Trevecca has been invited to send a delegate to the Sixth Annual National Student Symposium on the Presidency — to be held at the Sheraton International Convention Center in Preston, Virginia in a subdivision of Washington, D.C.)

Trevecca's one out of three hundred schools selected at random to attend the symposium. Both graduate and undergraduate, secular and non-secular schools have been invited.

The keynote speaker at the symposium will be President Gerald Ford. The theme will be "Policies vs. Politics" and the aim of the symposium is so student leaders can gain an insight on how the presidency affects student leaders across the nation and their jobs within their schools.

Following the symposium a reception is scheduled to be held at the White House in honor of the student leaders.

Who is 'the best man'?

It's that time of year again when all the campus politicians come to light. Poster and banners in colors gaudy enough to make an artist sick grace every blank wall, post, door, nook, and cranny to be found within the Trevecca boundaries. A rainbow seems pale by contrast. "Vote for me," "I'm the best," "If you vote for me, I'll solve all your problems," and similar expressions are about all you hear these days. And, granted, since it is the week of Student Council elections for officers for the 75-76 school year, you should expect to hear such conversation.

But, so often people who run for an office, either in Student Council or for a class, do not realize the complications and responsibilities that come with it. It is not just enough to have the experience, to have the ambition, and to have been approved by STUCO and the Administrative Council to run for a student government position. It takes dedication to be successful both in campaigning and in holding an office. I know — I've been there and hope to stay in that same place.

An important position such as that on Student Council is no place for those who cannot hold up under stress and strain. When you have been elected to do a job, you do it regardless of how much else you have to do, of what other activities you may have. It means sacrifice of yourself and what you want. You do what you do for the school and students, not for the sake of personal glory, your ego, or to become accepted and popular in the eyes of your peers.

At least, that's the way it should be. And, fortunately, the Councils since I've been here have, for the most part, fulfilled all this as well as they can.

But, often those who go out for candidacy fail to think things through from all angles and do not look at things realistically. It helps to confer with those who are presently holding the offices you are running for and find out the ups and downs of their roles before you are stuck with something you'll be extremely unhappy and tensed up about 90 percent of the time. A person dissatisfied with his office is an unsatisfactory officer.

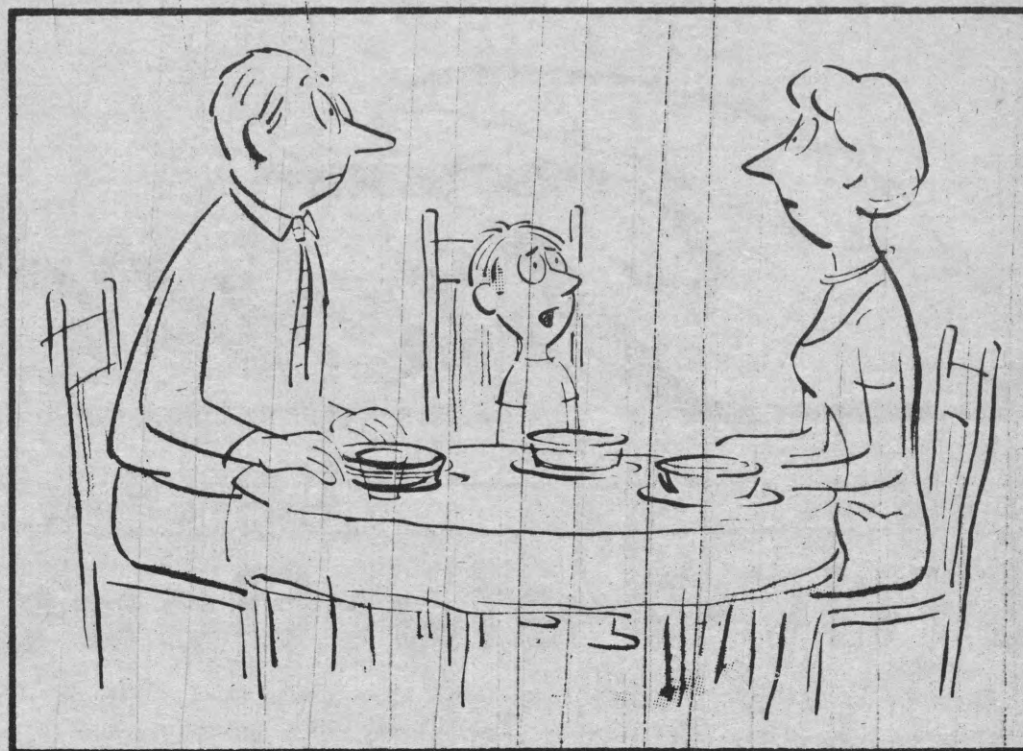

Responsibility is hard for some to accept. Some elected have to learn the hard way — you can't dissolve in tears when things pile up or go wrong; you can't run to someone else to do the job because you "haven't the time" or "have to go on a forensic meet" (or music tour, or some other such activity); or try to apologize to others for leaving things undone because you just haven't felt like it and still expect them to have the same faith and respect for you as a responsible officer that they had before. There's no one there but you.

Dramatic as that sounds it's true. When elected to an office, you are expected to carry out your work to the best of your ability. Shortcomings can be overlooked to a large degree IF you still try. Sluggishness and sloppiness in accepting responsibility cannot.

I just pray the new Council for 75-76 will realize this and make theirs the best STUCO ever, having one main goal in mind: to serve Christ first, the needs of the school and fellow students second, and to serve themselves last.

TNC recently sent three student representatives (Bill Boggs, Barry Kolp, and Fred Shepard) to the Christian Holiness Association Convention in Atlanta, Georgia.

STUCO elections for next year's officers are being held today. Congratulations to all these "college politicians," and may the best men and women win!

"I just can't bring myself to bless a spinach casserole."

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

I write this in all respect to those involved, but I feel this thought ought to be voiced. I transferred to Trevecca last year, and I can see the changes that have occurred even within one year. Many changes have been to the improvement, but some to me seem questionable.

I'm concerned about all the drama and drama relating activities that are going on here on campus. According to the Student Handbook and beliefs of the Nazarene church, attending places of amusement, including movies, dances, pool halls, etc. is not permitted. Movies and the theatre involve drama. If we're not to attend such places off campus, then why bring them and/or their activities to campus? Do we rationalize that by bringing them to the atmosphere of a Christian college makes them okay and beneficial?

This college, as a Christian college, is to provide and promote the development of an individual academically, mentally and emotionally, morally, physically, and, most of all, spiritually. We are here to build character, to learn more about ourselves, others and God; to grow as a person with dignity and worth; to establish our values and beliefs, for it is our beliefs that will influence our actions. The classes one takes will influence the way one thinks, believes, and behaves. The question is do these drama classes and related activities advance one spiritually, morally, or physically?

Drama involves pretending and acting. It seems so superficial. There are enough people today who pretend and are superficial in their lives and interactions, and they can't cope with the pressures of everyday life. Do we as a college need to teach people (students) to learn to pretend and to be superficial?

Christ was not a superficial man nor did he pretend. He was real and genuine. He was sensitive to the needs of others. Teaching the doctrines and ways of Christ should be what makes a Christian college different from other colleges. Trevecca as a Christian college should hold firm to its basic beliefs and principles and not conform its standards with any other college. If we do so then we fail to be different and that "something special" is no longer present.

I feel, as a college, we should not compromise our principles and teach drama on campus when according to the doctrine of the church and the principles of the college, we don't really believe in it. My hope in this letter is that we as a college community and individually examine our beliefs, principles, and standards and to look and see if we are reflecting by our lives those beliefs and standards, which we have set for ourselves, and, most of all, and more important, those that God has set for us.

Sincerely,
Janice Garcia

One in the rain ???

by Linda Cramer

Noah himself couldn't have done a better job of braving the heavenly waters (commonly known as cold, wet rain) than did those who attended All-School Retreat at Standing Stone State Park during Easter weekend.

We all left from in front of the cafeteria around 1 p.m. Good Friday. This reporter was packed into a little purple Gremlin with 4 other TNCers, plus enough suitcases, blankets, and pillows to choke an elephant.

After about a two-hour drive, we reached the park. The last 20 minutes of the trip was spent in zipping around hair-pin curves of the mountainous roads, with yours truly hanging on for dear life.

Soon we drove up the steep incline and stopped on the gravel road. It didn't take long for us to bail out and do a bit of hiking while the weather still held. After discovering that there were few wild flowers out (just spring beauties and johnny-jump-ups), we loaded back in the car and drove up another steep winding road to our cabin.

Our "luxurious" domain was Cabin No. 1, the furthest into the woods and with the most peace and quiet — or so we thought until late that night when someone kept tapping on the outside wall in hopes of scaring us — which they did!

Unrolling a sleeping bag on a top bunk (so it would be further from the creepy, crawly things that habitate the floors of such places) and unpacking a few necessities took little time. Then, it was a brief hike up to "Cabin 9" (the new remodeled '75 version, complete with cracked mirror and shower curtains).

Supper was served at 6, and all the retreaters were obviously starving from the way the submarine sandwiches and frites disappeared.

Get-together sessions started immediately after supper. A lot of games got us in the groove of dipping into the Serenity of our group and of ourselves as individuals — otherwise known as Serendipity. Ever try to alphabetize yourself according to first name and then last name with 85 other people in a matter of 25 seconds? It's not very easy. Or, ever have to try to guess the shoe size of Harper Cole, as this reporter did (my guess was 9, it's 12!)?

Yet, other and more meaningful moments proved to be enlightening as to how to better live the Christian life and how to rid ourselves of our own fallacies and shortcomings through faith in God.

It was very disappointing to all when these activities, headed up by Pop Storey and Vickie Wonders, had to be called to a sudden close Saturday evening as a result of continued rain over the weekend and flash flood warnings for the area. All retreaters left around 8 p.m. to return to the campus. Only the clean-up crew stayed later.

Yet, despite the rain, everyone's spirits were far from dampened. It only proved that those who share the love of Christ can still be "one in the Son" even when the hardest rains of trouble and temptation set in!

Cindon's five puppies have to be the cutest balls of fur around anywhere — just as pretty as their mama!

Cindon is a mama!

She's a mama! And Cindy and Don Milliron are grandparents!

Yes, March 4, 1975 was indeed V-Day for Cindon, Trevecca's much loved campus canine, owned by Cindy and Don Milliron, residents on Lester Avenue and TNC students, as well.

There were six babies ... er, puppies born, one of which died. The five remaining (four boys and one girl) are: Buzzy (named for Buzzy Harrison); Toot (named for Bill Smith); Mac (named for Donna MacLemore); Little Girl (because she's the only one!); and Doncin (the inverted form of Cindon).

Music students minister

TNC music students participate in the Music Ministry of the Tulip Street United Methodist Church.

February 16 The Concert Choir, under the direction of Professor James Jarrett presented a sacred concert to an appreciative audience.

March 23 Lana Bogie, soprano; Barbara Montague, alto; and Ken Higgenbotham, tenor, appeared in John Stainer's CRUCIFIXION.

March 30 Kathy Lovell, soprano; appeared as soloist in W. A. Mozart's ALLELUIA.

On April 19, 7:00 p.m., Terri Knight, soprano; Cindi Milliron, alto; Artie Collins, tenor; and Ron Storer, bass, will appear as soloists in D. Buxtehude's cantata ALLES, WAS IHR TUT. Members of the Nashville Symphony will accompany the presentation.

On May 4, 7:00 p.m., Michael Graham, organist, will be featured in a concert on their historic tracker organ. This organ is the oldest intact organ in Nashville, dating from the 1890's.

Mr. Bill Stinnett is the Minister of Music at Tulip Street Church.

According to Cindy, each of the furry tykes has a personality all its own. Little Girl and Doncin are the real squealers of the little family, Buzzy is shy and timid, Mac is pushy, and Tbot is just a plain old dog. Colorwise, the puppies range from brown and white (Buzzy, Toot and Doncin), black and white (Mac) to blond and white speckled (Little Girl). They're an adorable little bunch, to say the least.

Although the puppies are cute, five dogs is just too many, so the Millirons will be selling the puppies in about two weeks. So let's wish them luck in their adult life ahead!

Encounters successful

by Katie Ray

During spring break, Encounters II spent 11 days on tour. They gave 13 services in both North and South Carolina, most of which were zone rallies. Despite bad weather, they sang to over 3,000 people, among whom were many TNC students.

Karen Johnston, when asked about the trip, said, "We really did have a good tour."

The latter part of April, Encounters II plan to record a new album. They have some really good music which is done in a new style. This record should be out by the summer and will prove to be a very exciting sound.

Pray for them as God blesses them and others through their ministry.

Children's crusade a blessing

by Barry Kolp

The recent Children's Crusade, with evangelist Lawrence MacAllen, was successful. Each session ended with several children praying and accepting Christ as their Savior.

Becky Lovell, Youth Minister's Club president, expressed satisfaction with student participation. Attendance was not as high as expected, yet Becky is confident that next year will show more churches participating in the Crusade.

Lawrence MacAllen, using his varied skills of ventriloquism, chalk artistry, and Gospel magic, made a vital contribution to the Crusade's success.

Trevecca Nazarene College has once again participated in the blood drive of the American National Red Cross. The Bloodmobile visited the campus recently to receive blood from volunteer donors.

Students and faculty at TNC donated 91 units of blood for use by patients in Nashville and the surrounding region. The Nashville division of the Bloodmobile serves 99 hospitals in middle Tennessee and southern Kentucky. For the next six months the Red Cross will supply free blood to any of these 91 people or their family members who may require blood.

Special commendation goes to Robert Bowden of Brandon, Florida and the Civitan Club who sponsored, planned, and organized this drive.

Forensic team to compete in national tournament

by Kathy White

Trevecca's award winning forensic team has five persons who are eligible to compete in the national tournament on April 26th. The "unfortunate" site of the tournament is Niagara University, Niagara Falls, N.Y.!

Competing in oratory are Carl Hall and Chuck Green. Chuck will also compete in extemporaneous speaking. Debbi Kiddy and Phyllis Carter will be entered in duo interpretation, and in interpretation of prose and poetry; respectively, Kathy White will compete in prose in terp, also.

Last year the tournament was attended by over 100 colleges and universities in the United States, and the University of London. More than 430 contestants competed for the top positions in individual interpretative events. The competition is stiff, and the tournament long and tiring, but a little sight-seeing at the "honeymoon spot of the nation" should cure that!

We can be proud of the heights to which TNC forensics has soared in only three years. Hold each team member who will compete in the national tournament close in your prayers as they leave campus April 23rd and return on the 27th. Who knows — we may have a national championship as well as a state championship when we get back!

Miss Donna Suttles, a 1973 graduate of Trevecca Nazarene College, has been placed under missionary appointment by the Church of the Nazarene. Richard Gammill, Candidate Secretary for the Department of World Missions, announced in latter January that Miss Suttles will join the mission staff in New Guinea.

March weather plays havoc with Trojan schedule

A rainy month of March, in addition to doing millions of dollars worth of damage to property in Middle Tennessee, played with the Trojan baseball schedule. Due to the inclement weather the team was able to play only eight of fourteen scheduled games through April 1. Also, all eight of those games had resulted in TNC losses. However, head coach Bill Green and assistant coach Gary Coulter's team can be expected to bounce back and finish the season with a winning record.

For those unfamiliar with the 1975 Trojan varsity baseball team, here is a brief sketch of the team: pitchers — Larry Reynolds, a Lexington, Kentucky, senior; Kris Kilgore, a Pontiac, Michigan, junior; Randy "Twink" Smith, a Middletown, Ohio, senior; and Dan Hilen, a Dayton, Ohio, senior. Infielders — Tommy Hawkins (Soph., Blacksburg, S.C.); Charles Tyler, (Jr., Sylacauga, Ala.); Mike Harper, (Sr. Selma, Al); Lonnie Taylor, (Fr., Hebron, Ky.);

Ron Phillips, (Fr., Titusville, FL), Randy Fletcher, (Jr. Stephenson, VA); Gary McFarlin, (So., Centerville, TN); and Victor Collier, (Jr., Tampa, FL). Catchers — Rob Gassie, (Sr., Monroe, GA); Darrell Hall, (Fr., Louisville, KY); and Bucky Burnsed, (Fr., Savannah, GA). Outfielders — Ricky Brown, (Jr., Lincoln Park, MI); Johnny Bedsoe, (So., Fayetteville, NC); Pete Johnson, (Jr., Pontiac, MI); and Rick Arnott, (Jr., Swartz Creek, MI).
